How does a remortgage work?

A remortgage could help you save money if you weigh up the fees involved with the savings you could make. Here's how it works.

A remortgage is the process of moving your home's existing mortgage to one with a new lender.

People remortgage for many different reasons, including:

- Finding a better deal elsewhere – you might be on a standard variable rate (SVR) and want to move to a fixed-term rate.
- Coming to the end of a fixed-term deal on your current mortgage and wanting to lock in a lower rate with a new lender.
- The loan-to-value on the home is lower (as more of the mortgage has been repaid).
- Wanting to get ahead of a rise in interest rates, which would affect mortgage rates.

How a remortgage could help you save

One of the big reasons people remortgage is to save money on their monthly payments. If you're on a standard variable rate that is higher than the fixed-rate deals currently available, you could save by switching – either to a fixed-rate mortgage or one that 'tracks' the Bank of England's base rate.

If your home has gone up in value and you've paid off enough of your mortgage to give you a lower loan-to-value, it means you own more of your home and have less to pay off.

Remortgaging could result in lower monthly mortgage payments because you're paying off less of a loan amount (and in turn, less interest on it too).

How long does the remortgage application take?

The process can take between four to eight weeks from the time you apply so it's good to start planning early. If you're coming to the end of a fixed-rate or tracker term, your lender should tell you that your mortgage will move onto their standard variable rate¹. This could be an ideal time to move if you find a better deal elsewhere, or you may even find an attractive deal with the same lender and go through a 'product transfer' (see box).

How much does a remortgage cost?

Existing lender fees

Your existing lender could charge you a fee if you're leaving them early into a fixed period in your mortgage. This is known as an 'early repayment charge' and could be in the range of 1% to 5% of your outstanding mortgage balance. They will also charge you an 'exit' fee of around £50 to £100 to cover their administration costs.

New lender fees

Your new lender could charge you a range of fees, so before you commit it's important to check what you will pay. This will help you calculate whether a move is financially beneficial overall.

Their fees could include:

- Application fee to set up your new mortgage. Could also be called an 'arrangement', 'product' or 'booking' fee. This could be around £1,000.
- Valuation and conveyancing fees. Some providers won't charge for these, but it's worth checking if you are moving to a new lender.
- Solicitor's fee covering the legal paperwork to do with managing the transfer of your mortgage.

Is a remortgage right for you?

Whether or not you remortgage all depends on your situation and the type of mortgage plan you're currently on. You may want a mortgage that lets you make overpayments, or you could be coming to the end of your current deal's fixed term and think the lender's SVR will be too high. One of the most important things you can do before you decide is gather your current mortgage paperwork, look at the fees and get some expert advice on your next steps.

What about product transfers?

If your mortgage is coming to its maturity date but you'd prefer to stay with your current lender, you could consider a product transfer. Switching to a new mortgage product with the same lender could save you money and time. Our financial advisers can help guide you through choosing the right product to make it worthwhile and explain the logistics of transferring your mortgage product.

Are you insured to work from home?

We all know that remote working has soared since the onset of the pandemic, with 30% of the population still working exclusively from home during the week ending 29 November 2020. But with millions of workers taking to their home offices, their kitchen tables and – let’s face it – their sofas, are they adequately insured?

Although the Association of British Insurers issued a statement in the early months of the pandemic stating that office-based workers would not need to contact their insurer if working remotely during lockdown, things may now have changed. A recent survey revealed that more than two in five homeworkers have not reported to their home insurance company they are now working remotely – potentially invalidating their policy.

What if I continue to work from home?

You may need to contact your insurer if you continue to work from home, or are allowed to return to the office but choose to work from home several days per week, to tell them that your working patterns have changed.

In addition, if you are now receiving business clients in your property instead of the office, you’ll likely need to check with your insurer for this, too. You may not be covered for certain aspects of your policy, such as loss of money or theft.

Will my work laptop be covered?

Your own home insurance policy is unlikely to cover business equipment such as laptops, tablets and other devices. You should check with your employer to see whether their business insurance covers equipment away from the office.

What about health and safety?

All employers are legally required to have employers’ liability insurance, which covers their legal liability if employees suffer an injury during the course of their work. While some policies extend automatically to remote working, others don’t – so have a word with your employer to ensure they’re covered in case you have an accident while working from home.

If in doubt – check!

If you’re in any doubt, check with your insurer – you don’t want to risk invalidating your policy! Meanwhile, if you’d like to review your home insurance needs, just have a chat with us – we can review a wide range of policies and recommend the one most suited to your circumstances.

How to protect your business

What is business protection insurance and how does it work? Find out why it could be right for your business.

If you own or run a small business, protecting it is always a priority, especially if something were to happen to a key member, which could affect the financial health of the company. In this situation, business protection insurance could provide some peace of mind.

What is business protection?

Business protection provides coverage in the event that a director, business partner or other key employee of your business suffers a critical illness or long-term disability, or passes away. It's a way of protecting the business and ensuring continuity. Business protection can help support forward planning in terms of succession and gives you ways to provide stability during what could be an uncertain time, especially if the company is small.

What are the types of business protection?

Business protection insurance usually offers cover in three ways:

Key person protection

This protection provides cover to replace key staff and cover income lost by their absence that could affect the business. It can cover any key employee from a head of department to the CEO.

Business loan protection

This protects the business by helping to repay business debts like a loan or bank overdraft if the owner or a key member (like a partner) dies or suffers a critical illness.

Shareholder protection

This cover is also known as 'ownership' or 'partnership' protection. It specifically covers the business owners if a shareholder dies, or suffers a critical illness, by ensuring that funds will be available to buy shares from the deceased shareholder's estate.

These three forms of business protection also come with the option to add critical illness cover if you think it necessary. You could also get coverage for more than one person within the business. It's always important to speak to an adviser who can help you figure out the the right type of business protection for your business and any extra coverage (like critical illness) your business and employees could benefit from.

What are cross-option agreements?*

Cross-option agreements are usually required with shareholder protection insurance. The agreement is set up with the directors or partners of the business, and means that if one of these members dies, the remaining directors or partners have the option to buy back the shares from the deceased shareholder's estate. It also gives representatives of the deceased's estate the option to sell the shares to the remaining shareholders (which could be the preferred option for both sides).

Before setting an agreement up legal advice should be sought.*

What are the benefits of business protection?

One of the benefits of business protection is the knowledge that should anything happen to a crucial member of the business – or someone with a financial commitment within the company – there would be some protection financially. It also gives other members of the business some peace of mind knowing this. Business protection can protect any loans or mortgages tied to your business, too, meaning lenders (knowing that you have business loan protection in place) are less likely to refuse a future loan, and will not approach the guarantor of a loan or their estate to recoup any existing loans.

In a small business that relies on a few key employees, the risk to the business from a financial point of view might increase if one of the team were unable to contribute because they die or are critically ill. In that situation, business protection is a wise plan to have in place.

An adviser can help you find out which type of business protection plan works for you and your company.

Stamp duty and land tax

What you need to know

Following the lowering of the stamp duty threshold to £250,000 in July, the rate will drop further in October for buyers in England and Northern Ireland.

Stamp duty land tax applies to increasing portions of a property's price, starting at £40,000. There are different rates depending on how much you are paying for the property, whether you're a first-time buyer, where you live, and where the property is located within the UK. It's good to be aware of how much – if any – stamp duty you will pay, whether you're a first-time buyer, second homeowner, buy-to-let owner or in another situation.

Stamp duty bands from 1 October 2021

In England and Northern Ireland, as of 1 October 2021, you will pay stamp duty on a residential property's sale price over the first £125,000 (from 1 July 2021 up until 30 September, it was the first £250,000).

Property purchase price range	Stamp duty to be paid
Up to £125,000	0%
£125,001 - £250,000	2%
£250,001 - £925,000	5%
£925,001 - £1.5 million	10%
Over £1.5 million	12%

For example, if you buy a house for £295,000, the stamp duty will apply as follows:

- 0% on the first £125,000. You pay: £0
- 2% on the next £125,000. You pay: £2,500
- 5% on the final £45,000. You pay: £2,250
- Your total stamp duty: £4,750.

Whether you are a first-time buyer, moving home or looking for a second home or buy-to-let, our advisers are here to help you through your journey.

First-time buyers

If you're a first-time buyer in England or Northern Ireland, it means you are about to buy your first main residential home and have never owned a freehold or leasehold on a property before (in or out of the UK):

- You will pay no stamp duty on the first £300,000 of your new home.
- Then, you will pay 5% on anything from £300,001 to £500,000.
- If your property price is above £500,000, the stamp duty from the rates paid by non-first-time buyers applies.

Second homes and buy-to-let properties

For those who are in the market for a second property, whether it's a buy-to-let or a second home, they will pay an additional 3% in stamp duty on top of those existing rate levels.

When is stamp duty not required?

There are some situations when you may not need to consider stamp duty. For example:

- When no money or form of payment is exchanged for a land or property transfer.
- If a property is left to you in a will.
- The property is transferred after a divorce or dissolution of a civil partnership.
- If the property you are buying is freehold costing less than £40,000.

These are a few examples in England and Northern Ireland. Scotland and Wales may have additional exemptions, so it's worth speaking to an adviser in those areas if you are buying a property.

Land and buildings transaction tax Scotland

Buyers in Scotland will pay a land and buildings transaction tax (LBTT) when buying a property, in place of stamp duty.

The Scottish system came into place in 2015, and is set up in a similar tiered tax rate level to that in England:

Property purchase price range	LBTT to be paid
Up to £145,000	0%
£145,001 - £250,000	2%
£250,001 - £325,000	5%
£325,001 - £750,000	10%
Over £750,001	12%

If you are a first-time buyer in Scotland, you are exempt from LBTT for the first £175,000 of your property's sale price:

Property purchase price range	LBTT to be paid
Up to £175,000	0%
£175,001 - £250,000	2%
£250,001 - £325,000	5%
£325,001 - £750,000	10%
Over £750,001	12%

For those in Scotland buying a second home or buy to let property, the additional rate of tax they will pay is 4% on top of the standard rates above.

When is stamp duty not Land transaction tax in Wales

In Wales, the land transaction tax (LTT) took over from stamp duty in 2018.

This means if you are in Wales and buying your main residential home (and do not own any other property) the LTT only comes into effect after the first £180,000 of the property's sale price.

However, a big difference in Wales compared to the rest of the UK is that there are no exemptions for first-time buyers, so the tiered system applies to all types of buyers (whether first-time or not).

For those in Wales buying a second home or buy to let property, the additional rate of tax they will pay is 4% on top of the standard rates below.

Property purchase price range	LTT to be paid
Up to £180,000	0%
£180,001 - £250,000	2%
£250,001 - £400,000	5%
£400,001 - £750,000	10%
£750,001 - £1.5 million	12%
Over £1.5 million

Get the best out of your BTL mortgage

Many fixed mortgage deals will be approaching the end of their term this October, so it's a good idea to review your buy-to-let mortgage.

With interest rates still at low levels and demand for rental properties increasing around the country, investing in a buy-to-let (BTL) is a popular choice for many.

Buy to let basics

A BTL mortgage is a specific type of product for those who want to buy a property with the intention of renting it. Because of this, there are different terms and rules around a BTL mortgage (compared to a regular mortgage for a property the buyer intends to live in.)

- With a BTL mortgage, the anticipated rental income is taken into account when the lender calculates how much you can borrow.
- A BTL mortgage could suit investors with enough equity to put down a deposit of at least 20% of the value of the property (but some lenders could require up to 40%).
- Your credit record is closely scrutinised with a BTL mortgage, as with a regular mortgage application.

Interest rates for BTL mortgages are usually higher than a regular mortgage.

Things to remember

If you have a BTL mortgage already and its fixed interest rate term is coming to an end, you may be thinking about switching products or providers to gain a better deal. Here are some other things to look out for:

- Examine all of your options into the type of product to suit your investment going forward. A financial adviser is best placed to help you with this.
- Don't forget to research any fees and charges around changing your product too, as these could be higher than you expect.
- When changing products, you may be asked about your property's rental income history in order to assure any new lenders that you are able to keep up with mortgage payments.
- Show that you have sufficient savings to cover any gaps in rental periods when your property could be unoccupied.
- For your own peace of mind, having a cushion of savings available to cover any essential repairs is important.

If you are looking to remortgage your BTL property or are thinking about transferring your mortgage to a different provider, our advisers can help you find a product that best suits you.

Some buy to let mortgages are/is not regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority.

Specialist mortgages and your holiday let

If you're in the market for a holiday let and need a specialist mortgage, what should you be aware of?

When might you need a specialist mortgage? The clue is in the name – if your situation is different from the normal criteria of a traditional mortgage, then a specialist product could be the answer. This especially applies to people in the market for a holiday let.

When do you need a specialist mortgage?

A specialist mortgage could apply if you're buying a high value home or already have a home and want a second charge mortgage in order to carry out renovations. They could also suit those who are self-employed, looking for a holiday or buy-to-let (BTL) property or people who do not meet the standard criteria for a mortgage. Whatever the reason, seek financial advice from an expert in the specialist mortgage field to find the best deal for your situation.

Holiday lets

When it comes to a mortgage for a property you intend to use as a holiday let, your regular income is considered in terms of the loan value, regardless of the amount you estimate might come in from the eventual rental. This is to ensure you can afford the mortgage payments during times when rents are not coming in, or when you are using the property. Although staying there yourself is one of the advantages of a holiday let, you can't live there on a permanent basis as it would affect the terms of the mortgage.

Some specialist mortgage products for holiday lets offer a maximum loan-to-value (LTV) of a certain amount for the mortgage. So, if your holiday let costs £200,000, and the LTV from the specialist product is 70%, then you will be able to get a loan of £140,000 from your lender and your deposit would need to be £60,000.

Lenders have their own criteria, which could include the following:

- Applicants need to be over the age of 21 and in stable employment.
- Your main income should not come from another rental or investment.
- Borrowers will need to prove their income exceeds a certain amount annually.
- A minimum deposit (usually around 25% of the property value).
- Rental projection from a holiday letting agent may be required, covering off-peak seasonal periods and high-demand times of year.
- The rental property itself must meet certain criteria (for example, being located within the UK and functioning as a single-family dwelling).

Holiday let vs buy-to-let

You might think that there is little difference between a holiday let mortgage and a buy-to-let mortgage (BTL), but there are a few. A BTL mortgage will contain different conditions and requirements, such as the need for an assured shorthold tenancy being in place (AST).

Using a BTL property as a holiday letting – without informing your lender – is a breach of the agreement and could undermine your mortgage contract and credit rating. The main difference between the two types of mortgages is how the loan size is calculated, and the estimates of rent the properties will receive. A holiday let will tend to bring in less rental income due to its seasonal nature.

Furnished holiday lets come with tax advantages that BTL properties do not. They are treated as a business, which means you can claim capital gains tax relief on any profits. Owners can also claim capital allowances to cover the cost of furnishings and furniture, and equipment such as refrigerators and washing machines.

There are more allowable expenses for a holiday let, compared to a BTL, including:

- ✓ letting agents' fees
- ✓ accountants' fees and certain legal fees
- ✓ mortgage interest
- ✓ building and contents insurance
- ✓ maintenance and repairs to the property
- ✓ utility bills, council tax, ground rents and service charges.

Speak to a financial adviser to work out what's best for your situation if you are looking for a specialist mortgage.

Some specialist mortgages are not regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority.

The perks of protection

What support do insurers offer after the event?

Illness and bereavement help.

Many providers give free access to services offering practical and emotional support for those left behind after the death of the policyholder.

Rehabilitation.

Insurers usually offer back-to-work support services, including physiotherapy, careers guidance or advice if you choose to go self-employed. If you're returning to work following a mental health issue, providers will continue to cover counselling sessions for a set period of time.

As well as peace of mind, many insurance providers offer additional benefits that you may not know about.

Whether we're crossing the road or getting on a plane, we encounter risks every day. For many of us, life has felt more uncertain than ever over the past year as we continue to deal with the coronavirus pandemic. Although we can't always control what's happening in our lives, we can plan for the unexpected.

By taking out a protection policy, you can safeguard your family's finances if your situation changes. The main types of protection include:

- Life cover – pays out a lump sum if you die
- Health insurance – pays medical costs at a private hospital or private ward
- Critical illness – pays a tax-free lump sum if you're diagnosed with a major illness
- Home contents and buildings – covers your home's structure (including fixtures and fittings) and contents (furniture)
- Income – pays out if you can't work due to illness or injury

As well as peace of mind, protection policies often come with added extras. We've highlighted examples of some of the perks you could receive when you take out a policy, even if you don't make a claim.

Welcome gifts

When you sign up for a protection policy, some providers offer a welcome gift. For example, health insurers sometimes offer gadgets like an Apple Watch to help you track your activity – with some even offering a discount based on the amount of exercise you do each month.

Discounts

Many health insurers offer discounts on gym memberships and weight-loss programmes to help you embrace a healthier lifestyle. Some also offer you the option of taking a health check to reduce the amount you pay each month.

It's worth noting that when you take out a protection policy, your provider is likely to offer you discounts on other products such as pet or travel insurance.

Additional healthcare options

Some health insurers now cover complementary therapies such as osteopathy and acupuncture, giving you more treatment choices. In addition, counselling services are now included in most health insurance policies and many also give you the option to upgrade your hospital room if you need treatment.

Will writing

Some providers of life insurance give new policyholders the opportunity to draw up a will free of charge.

Cover for children

Many critical illness plans include free cover for dependent children.
