How might rising interest rates affect your mortgage?

The Bank of England has raised interest rates which means bigger mortgage bills for some homeowners.

At the start of February 2022, the Bank of England raised interest rates for the second time in three months from 0.25% to 0.50% to combat soaring inflation. This move will have a knock-on effect as mortgage lenders raise interest rates in response, which will increase monthly payments for some borrowers.

What does a rise in interest rates mean for your mortgage?

Anyone without a fixed-rate mortgage is likely to see their borrowing costs rise, although how they are affected will depend on the type of product they have. Your adviser can help you assess your mortgage deal and figure out ways to make some much needed savings.

- Only borrowers with a mortgage that moves up or down with the base rate will be affected by the interest rate change.
- This includes tracker mortgages and standard variable rate mortgages (which you revert to when a mortgage deal ends).

Fixed-rate mortgages

Most mortgage holders are on fixed-rate deals so won't see any change in their monthly payments. This is because the interest rate you pay stays the same for the length of the mortgage deal.

Standard variable rate mortgages

You will usually be moved on to a standard variable rate when your existing tracker or fixed rate mortgage deal ends. For example, if you take out a two-year fixed deal and you don't remortgage, you will be moved to the lender's standard variable rate. The rate is likely to be considerably higher than what you were paying before, so your monthly payments will increase, and lenders can raise the standard variable rate whenever they want.

Tracker mortgages

Homeowners with a tracker mortgage will find that their interest rate payments will now go up, but when this happens will depend on their lender. Tracker mortgages are a type of variable rate mortgage that follow the Bank of England's interest rate. So, when official interest rates go up, the rate on your tracker will rise as well.

As a rule, they do not exactly match the base rate, but are set a level just above it. For example, if the lender's rate is the base rate +1%, the interest you'd pay in total on your loan would be 1.5%.

Whatever type of mortgage you have, we can advise you about how the interest rate rise might affect you and address any questions or concerns you have.

How to save on your mortgage costs

The best thing you can do is to speak to your financial adviser. For example, if you're on a tracker mortgage, they will be able to advise whether changing to a fixed-term deal to protect yourself from any further rises is a good idea. They will also let you know about the fees involved when making changes to your mortgage. If you are on a standard variable rate you can switch at any time, so with interest rates rising, your adviser can help you look at available fixed-rate deals.

Homeowners on fixed deals don't have to worry about their mortgage going up until their current term ends. Most lenders will let you lock into a new deal six months before the current one ends so it's a good idea to plan.

Whether you're looking to remortgage or are a first-time buyer, we can help you find the most suitable deal for your circumstances and help keep your costs down.

Home insurance explained

This year sees new rules from insurers that could bring you savings on your home insurance renewal.

The Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) has announced that insurers will have to offer the same deals to new customers and renewing customers for their home insurance.

Home insurance customers are particularly affected by hikes in renewals, so this is a good time to review your policy with your financial adviser.

What is buildings insurance?

Buildings insurance covers the building itself and its structure – like the roof, floors, windows and in some cases external walls and garages. It will also cover permanent fittings in your kitchen and bathroom (but not your boiler – you'll need specific boiler protection for that).

Mortgage lenders require homeowners to have buildings insurance in place. It's there to protect your property's structure from damaging events like fires, storms, earthquakes, flooding and natural disasters, as well as things like subsidence and even malicious damage or vandalism.

What does buildings insurance not cover?

Buildings insurance won't cover:

- Accidents or normal wear and tear in the home
- Issues arising from neglect of the property
- Damage to gates, fencing or plants
- Effects of frost to external pipes and brickwork
- Damage from pests, insects or birds

To cover some of these issues, your insurance provider may offer accidental coverage as an extra to your policy – but you'll pay more for it. Your adviser can help you decide whether the cost of accidental damage cover is worth it in terms of what the policy actually includes.

It's worth noting that buildings insurance coverage is invalidated if the property is left unattended for more than 30 consecutive days.

What does contents insurance cover?

In a home insurance policy, the contents coverage allows you to select a sum of money (for example £10,000) that you estimate will cover the replacement of contents inside your home if they are damaged, destroyed or stolen.

These items could include electronics and entertainment consoles, kitchenware, furniture, antiques, gym equipment and jewellery. If you have a particularly expensive single item (like a piece of jewellery, a watch or a painting) you may have to declare it separately, depending on your provider's conditions of coverage. This could increase your insurance premium, however. We can help you assess your contents and what your level of coverage should be.

Do you need contents coverage?

Although contents coverage is not compulsory when you own a property, most owners take out some cover (and most providers offer a discounted premium if you have buildings and contents insurance together). Having both means if you need to make a claim for something that affected the building but also some of your contents (for example, flooding damage to your home's foundation and soft furnishings) you would be able to claim for both – using the same policy.

Even if you are renting a property, some contents cover is a good idea to insure your valuable items and provide peace of mind should anything happen.

How we can help you save

Your adviser can search the market and find a home insurance policy that covers your property's structure sufficiently, along with giving you the best advice on how much contents cover you really need. We're here to make sure you're not overpaying for a renewal and will examine your existing plan's small print to check that it properly covers at-risk areas of your home and meets your needs.

Your adviser can help review your home insurance – especially when it's time to renewal – and help ensure you're not overpaying for your policy.

What is critical illness cover?

Whether you need critical illness protection depends on your situation as well as any existing policies you might already have in place.

Critical illness insurance pays out a one-off, lump sum if you're diagnosed with a condition or disability that is covered by your policy. It can be offered when someone applies for life insurance – as extra coverage.

In a similar way to some life insurance plans, critical illness covers a set number of years. You can specify whether you want the payout to rise over the course of the term (so it keeps up with inflation) or the opposite – decreasing because your aim is to cover something specific like your mortgage.

If you're thinking about critical illness cover, it's important to speak to your financial adviser who can help you decide how much cover you'll need and how long the term should last.

What does critical illness cover?

Products vary depending on the provider. Certain illnesses are covered as standard by most insurers, including, cancer, heart attack, stroke, organ failure, multiple sclerosis, loss of arms or legs and Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease.

Some providers may allow you to add additional illnesses to your policy, which you'll pay more for. Your children could also be covered as part of your policy so it's worth asking your adviser about these options if it's something you're keen to have in place.

What does critical illness not cover?

Although a diagnosis of a critical illness can mark the start of a claim in some policies, others may only begin to offer protection once your illness hits a certain level of severity. For example, if you are diagnosed with cancer, payments may only begin when permanent symptoms have been officially diagnosed. Additionally, not all types of cancer are necessarily covered by critical illness protection.

It's important to work with your financial adviser when reviewing a policy and all the small print before you commit to make sure you are sufficiently covered – and aware of areas not included.

Pre-existing conditions

Just like the life insurance application process, critical illness protection requires you to disclose any pre-existing conditions. If you don't then your policy could be invalid.

Your adviser can search the market for a suitable plan, but you'll probably have to pay more in premiums and there will likely be some extra exclusions. The price you pay will vary, based on things like age, occupation, state of health, lifestyle and how much coverage you need and for how long.

Do you need critical illness cover?

There are things to consider if you're worried about being diagnosed with a critical illness and the impact on your income and ability to keep up with bills (which would not be covered by state benefits when you're unable to work).

Your adviser will help you look at the following areas:

- Your employer's coverage – is there any paid leave for illness or disability and for how long?
- Do you have an existing life insurance policy and if so, does it have any illness coverage included?
- Could you consider income protection insurance as an alternative to critical illness?
- Do you have sufficient savings and investments you could use in place of critical illness cover?

If you want to proceed, it's important to work with your adviser to see how much protection you'll need. This means looking at your monthly outgoings and how much you and your family require to live comfortably. You might want to add in any potential costs from medical treatment you may need.

During these important decisions it's easy to lose track of the small details, which is why your adviser can help make the process easier for you and your family and give you some peace of mind.

We can examine your needs and existing policies and then find you the right cover that protects your finances – and your family – should anything happen.

How to protect your mortgage

Strengthening your ability to keep up with mortgage payments is important and will give you some peace of mind if your circumstances change.

Life insurance is the form of protection most of us would name as one that could pay down or pay off a mortgage. Yet there are other situations (apart from death) that could mean it's very difficult or even impossible to keep up with mortgage payments for an extended period – without the help from other types of coverage.

Here are some protection policies you might want to have in place (alongside life insurance) to give your mortgage some security if you are unable to keep up with mortgage payments. Your adviser can help you work out the best option for your situation.

Critical illness protection pays out a one-off, lump sum if you're diagnosed with a critical condition or disability that is covered by your policy. It can be offered when you buy for life insurance, as extra coverage.

Income protection pays out a percentage of your monthly income if you are unable to work due to illness, an accident or disability. Depending on the terms, you'll receive a regular income until you either return to paid work, retire, pass away or if the policy term comes to an end.

Mortgage payment protection insurance (MPPI) pays your monthly mortgage payments if you're unable to make them due to an accident or illness.

What's the difference between income protection and MPPI?

Income protection insurance is seen as more comprehensive than MPPI as it covers a proportion of your income and not just your monthly mortgage payments. It could also help to cover monthly bills aside from your mortgage. The period you're protected with income protection tends to be longer than MPPI, too.

Your adviser will help you find a policy that works for you and your needs, in terms of the length of cover you want and how much the premium might be. MPPI premiums could be lower than those for income protection and more affordable.

The pros and cons of downsizing

Downsizing could mean lower overheads as well as the extra cash from the sale of your home. But there are factors to consider before you make the decision.

From reducing household bills to boosting retirement savings, there are plenty of reasons why people choose to downsize and move to a smaller property.

It's important to consider interim costs, however, like whether you decide to rent in the area you're thinking of moving to, as the search could take some time. There are also fees to pay when selling your home including stamp duty, survey costs, legal expenses, agents' fees and moving costs. Your adviser will be able to help breakdown these costs for you.

Practical benefits of downsizing

Along with cutting your bills, helping you to pay off debt and putting some money towards your retirement savings goals, downsizing has other benefits too.

The stress of maintaining a larger home might become unmanageable as you grow older – leaving you out of pocket and physically drained too. Moving to a less expensive-to-run, smaller home could make your life simpler, leaving you with more time to do the things you enjoy during your retirement years.

Downsizing and tax

Your financial adviser can guide you through the tax implications for downsizing, like inheritance tax and whether your estate may still be able to benefit from the residence nil rate band (RNRB) even if you have downsized your property before your death. The rules around this are complex and often come with qualifying conditions, however, so it's essential to let your adviser examine your options and potential tax implications beforehand.

If you're considering downsizing, your adviser can expertly guide you through the process, explain your options and ensure you are fully informed throughout the process

Plan ahead when downsizing

It pays to plan ahead for the type of home you need when you're downsizing. Your mortgage adviser can help you do this and ensure you're buying somewhere that's the right size for you, as well as keeping you updated on what your eventual mortgage payment might be. They will also be able to explain the advantages and disadvantages of other options, like moving to a retirement village.

It's an emotional decision too, especially if the home you are selling is where your children grew up and holds happy memories. Talk about it as a family so that you are all clear about the reasons for the move. Thinking about your future and planning what your retirement income and outgoings could be – in your current home compared to a smaller one – is also something your adviser can help with.

Things to think about if you've made the decision to downsize:

- Clear out any clutter before you move and consider selling items (like furniture) you will no longer need.
- Look at your home and assess whether any repairs are needed before you sell. Your mortgage adviser can help you with this.
- Your adviser will also be able to factor in the costs for selling your home and moving to a new one, to help you budget.
- Think about how much space you will need in your new home, for hobbies, work and when guests come to stay.

Feel more secure with income protection

When it comes to insurance, we're more likely to protect our pets than our income. Here's why it's important to have some income protection in place.

What is income protection?

Income protection pays out a percentage of your monthly income if you are unable to work due to illness, an accident or disability. It gives you a buffer between finding yourself without an income, paying the bills and protecting your family's security. Building an emergency fund (which covers around three months' worth of bills and essentials) is a good start to give you some financial back-up, but income protection insurance can also provide peace of mind.

How does income protection work?

Income protection is an insurance policy, so you pay a monthly or annual premium for it like any other type of insurance. If you can't work because of sickness, disability or other reasons (depending on your policy criteria), you will receive a regular income until you either return to paid work, retire, pass away or the policy term comes to an end. We can help you determine how much coverage you'll need.

How much does income protection pay?

It could be anything from 60% to 65% of your pre-tax income, and the regular payments (which are tax free) will start after a pre-agreed waiting period, which could be weeks or months. You'll pay more in premiums if the waiting period is shorter and the percentage of your income is larger. This type of protection is different to life insurance or critical illness cover, both of which do not pay regular amounts but instead provide one-off lump sums in the event of your death or the diagnosis of a critical illness.

Do you need income protection?

With the rise in the cost of living and cost of borrowing right now, many people are worried about paying the bills should anything happen that leaves them unable to work. Recent surveys have shown that the average UK family doesn't have enough in savings to be financially secure for long if they're no longer receiving an income.

That's where income protection can give you some financial resilience, especially if your workplace does not provide statutory sick pay (or only starts to pay out after a period of several months). Your adviser can help you navigate the income protection policies that could best suit you and your needs, weighing up how much your premiums might be with the amount of cover you're after.

As with any insurance policy to do with your life and health, things like your age, health, occupation and other factors (like how much of your income you would like to receive, and how soon you would like payments to start) will be considered when your premium is calculated.

We can guide you through what type of policy works best for you, helping you find value for money as well as some peace of mind knowing your income is protected.

Your adviser is best placed to help you find an income protection policy to suit your needs and provide some security for you and your family.

Peace of mind for the self-employed

Sarah is self-employed and she approached her financial adviser for some advice. As a single mum, she worried that her emergency savings fund wouldn't be enough to cover the rent or bills if she found herself unable to work. Sarah's financial adviser found her an income protection plan with an affordable monthly premium that covers 65% of her earnings.

Working out your CGT

Calculating CGT can be confusing, as you will need to have the details for each capital gain or loss, along with information about the costs involved in the sale and what you received for each asset. You'll then have to factor in your income tax band and the percentage of CGT you'll have to pay on the gains you've made.

Because it's so complex, a financial adviser is best placed to help you get this all done easily. They will also be aware of any tax reliefs you may be entitled to claim during the calculations, or whether there are other ways to reduce or eliminate your CGT (like gifting to your spouse or civil partner).

What is capital gains tax?

If you're selling certain assets of high value or a second property, you'll probably have to pay capital gains tax on your profits. Here's how it works.

Capital gains tax (CGT) is a tax on the profits earned from selling an asset or a property belonging to you (excluding your main residence). You only pay CGT on your overall gains above your tax-free allowance – known as the 'annual exempt amount'. In the 2021/22 tax year this amount is £12,300, so you can make this much in profit before you pay any tax. Married couples or those in civil partnerships can double this to £24,600 by pooling their allowances together. The government announced in its 2021 March Budget that these levels have been frozen until 2026.

Depending on your income tax band, you will pay the following levels of CGT when you sell an asset or property:

Basic rate taxpayers

The CGT to pay on assets is 10%

The CGT to pay on property is 18%

Higher/additional rate taxpayers

The CGT to pay on assets is 20%

The CGT to pay on property is 28%

Difference between assets and property

CGT affects assets and property differently when it comes to how much you'll pay:

Assets

An asset could be a piece of art, jewellery or an antique to name a few – but several assets are exempt from CGT, such as your family home, any personal belongings worth less than £6,000 or a car that is for personal use. Investments are assets, and if you're selling things such as shares, funds, investment trusts or other financial products you will be charged CGT if you go over your annual allowance (depending on your tax band).

Property

You will have to pay CGT if the property you are selling is a second home or a source of rental income. CGT needs to be paid within 30 days of completion of the sale or disposal of the property. You won't pay any CGT on the sale of your main residential home, providing that it's never been used for business purposes while you've lived in and owned it, and it covers less than 5,000 square meters (including the grounds).

There are rules around CGT if you live in the UK but are selling an asset or a property abroad (you may be liable to pay CGT on gains made from the sale). It's worth getting advice about a sale abroad if this affects you.

When is CGT not required?

You won't need to pay CGT on a gift to your spouse or civil partner, or to a charity. You're also not required to pay CGT on certain financial assets, including gains made from ISAs or PEPs (the forerunner of ISAs), UK government gilts, Premium Bonds and winnings from betting, pools, or lotteries.

Our advisers can help you make sense of any CGT affecting you and your assets, helping you to arrange your investments in the best way to make the most of their potential, including when you sell them.

HM Revenue and Customs practice and the law relating to taxation are complex and subject to individual circumstances and changes which cannot be foreseen.
